Ike Flies to Paris Today; Faces Trouble

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

PARIS (AP)—President Eisenhower is flying to Paris today with an offer of atomic missiles for allied armies and an appeal for greater unity in the North Atlantic coalition.

He faces trouble on both issues. The trip to Europe is Eisenhower's second as chief executive. But in contrast with his 1955 mission to negotiate with the Soviet Union, this time he will seek to rally the Western alliance against Russia's bid for dominance in the dawn era of pushbutton weapons.

The Presidential plane, Columbine III, is to land at Orly Airport. Although storms were raging in the North Atlantic, London forecasters said the weather was fairly good along the President's ship-lined route.

France laid out a red carpet welcome with full military honors for the man who led the victorious allied armies in World War I and later served as NATO's first supreme commander. President Rene Coty planned to be among the welcome.

Along with the red carpet, the government ordered 3,000 steel-helmeted security troops to line the President's route from Orly to the U.S. embassy, where he will stay.

The 15-nation NATO conference is bringing together for the first time in one group British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan, German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, French Premier Felix Gaillard, and Italian Premier Adone Zoli. The meetings will be held Monday through Wednesday and Eisenhower will fly home Thursday.

A Probe of Subway Strike Is Probable

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York Central today denied a published report it will ask permission to discontinue passenger train service between Cleveland, Indianapolis and St. Louis, and between Cleveland and Cincinnati. The report was in the New York Times today.

A spokesman for the railroad issued this statement: "The article (which said the Central would ask permission to discontinue such service) is incorrect. We have no further comment to make."

Asked if he could say to what extent the published reports were incorrect, he said: "We will not go beyond that statement."

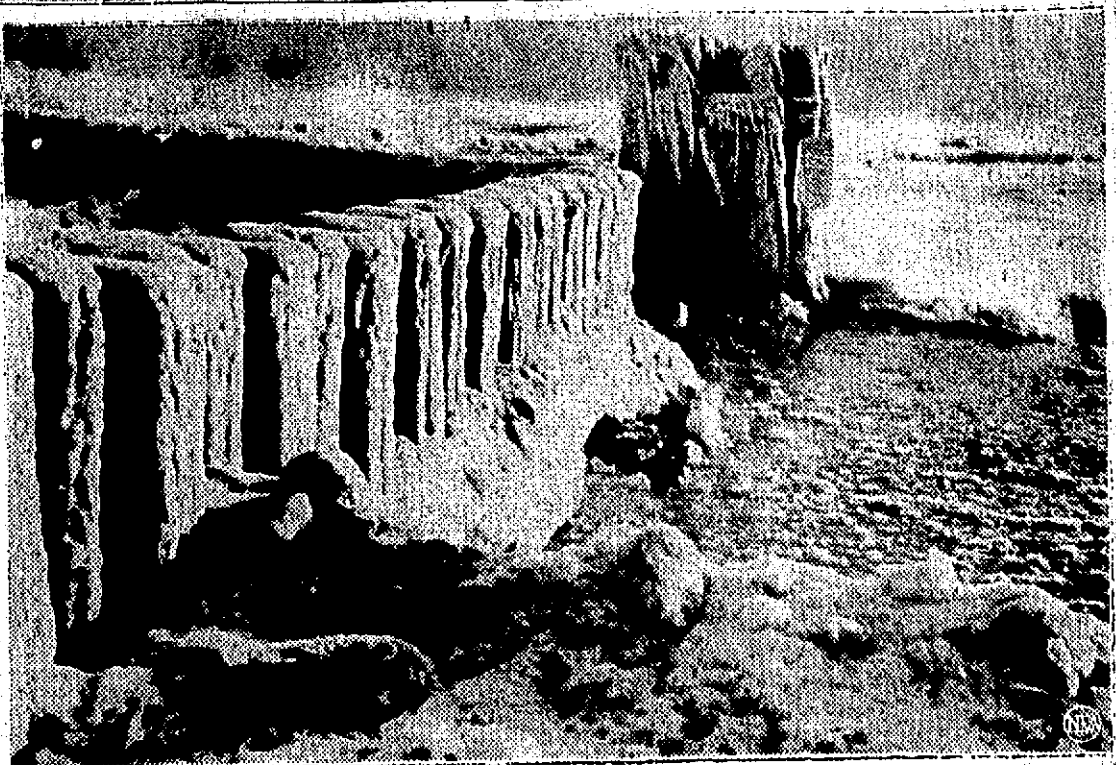

According to the Times report, the road will file applications early next week with regulatory authorities in Ohio, Indiana and Illinois to discontinue passenger service now serving the various cities.

NEW YORK (AP)—A state legislator today called for a probe of the city's Transit Authority in connection with the subway motormen's strike which has bedeviled millions of travelers since 5 a. m. Monday.

The lawmaker, Assemblyman William A. Kummer, Manhattan Democrat, also called for removal of two of the TA's three commissioners for what he termed very "irresponsible statements made by them during the strike."

As all sides awaited the views of Mayor Robert F. Wagner on a strike-ending formula put forward by the disgruntled motormen's union, the TA reported rush-hour subway service this morning at 70 per cent of normal. It was the best since the strike began.

Partial service has been maintained largely through the use of motormen who are not members of the striking union and supervisory personnel. In addition, the TA said, each day has brought back a growing number of the men who had left their jobs.

Person Not in a Hurry Is Rare Sight at Christmas

By Mary Anita Lasater

What is the most unusual type of person you could see in Hope today (or, for that matter, anywhere in America at this time of year)?

Without exception, it would probably be "a person Not in a hurry."

But what's all the rush for? At any season of the year we can't in a hurry so we can get more work done in less time. That gives us a chance to have recreation, usually performed quickly in order to give us more time to sleep. If sleep doesn't come as soon as we would like it, often, "tranquilizer" is taken.

That is to make us relax, which we claimed to be doing in the first place. And at the Christmas season all forms of nervous tension seem to be multiplied.

We try to crowd in too many activities in too little time whether we are performing "good deeds" or going to parties or simply living.

Sometimes I think the cry for "the good old days" is really a longing for "the good slow days." The days when we were rather than something shoppers do.

The greatest puzzle to me is how the human life span can be longer now at a time when mankind is fighting a war of "Nerves," mentally and physically.

But it is. So, why not take advantage of the extra time we will probably have on this earth? Once in a while, "Be still . . ." as the scriptures advise. The results will amaze you.

Faubus Brings Up Special Session

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—A special session which would deal with integration has been discussed by Gov. Orval Faubus and three members of the pro-segregationist Citizens' Council.

Faubus said after the meeting yesterday that a good chance such a session would be called. Only the governor can summon the Legislature into special session.

Faubus said the three council members were interested in the same thing that interested him—a law to close any school where federal troops were stationed.

The delegation included Robert Ewing Brown, president of the council; Amis Guthrie, attorney for the council; and the Rev. Wesley Pruden, a Baptist minister who is a council member.

Faubus would not give details about the meeting. Guthrie, asked by newsmen whether the delegation was satisfied by what the governor told it, replied:

"We had a very pleasant and enjoyable meeting with the governor."

U. S. Russia May Swap Specialists

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States is negotiating with the Soviet Union for an interchange of educational specialists. Secretary of Welfare Folsom disclosed today.

"We believe that this is the most constructive next step we can take to improve our knowledge of Soviet education," Folsom said in a letter to Sen. Fulbright (D-Ark.).

The U. S. also said funds are being sought to strengthen that office's comparative education branch, with the same aim.

KATV Wants to Move to Little Rock

WASHINGTON (AP)—Television station KATV at Pine Bluff, Ark., has asked the Federal Communications Commission to allow it to move to Little Rock.

The FCC also announced yesterday that Southwestern Publishing Co., at Fort Smith, Ark., had applied for a new station on Channel 9 at Hot Springs.

KATV, on Channel 7, requested further that Channel 9 be made available to Pine Bluff or any other community of the area which wanted it. A permit for a station on that channel has been issued twice at Hot Springs and returned unused to the FCC both times.

KATV suggested substituting UHF Channel 52 at Hot Springs.

At present KATV serves the Pine Bluff and Little Rock areas from a transmitting tower about midway between the two cities. The main studio is at Pine Bluff and an auxiliary studio at Little Rock recently was destroyed in a fire.

John H. Fugate, manager of KATV, said the request to move to Little Rock was made because of economic considerations. He said the station had been under a handicap because it is regarded as a Pine Bluff facility and Little Rock is the larger city.

State Sells Prison Farm Cotton

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—The state yesterday sold 991 bales of prison farm cotton for a total price of $156,428 at Pine Bluff Cotton Exchange.

Prices ranged from 26.65 to 40 cents a pound with C. T. Martin of Pine Bluff paying the top price, $40.

The purchasing agent said that because of unfavorable weather the prison cotton crop will be short this year. About 2,400 bales was produced last year. This year's total is expected to be about 2,400 bales.

Four Persons Die in Plant Blast

ELKTON, Md. (AP)—Four persons were killed and several injured today in an explosion at the Thiokol Chemical Corp. plant in U. S. 40 near here, state police reported.

State police said the explosion happened at 10:25 a. m. Upon Hospital in Elkton said it had three persons in its accident room.

Thiokol manufactures rocket propellant. Five of the 10 rockets used last October 21 in Project Pershing were propelled by fuel developed and manufactured at the plant. The Pershing rocket soared to 4,000 miles after it was taken about 100,000 feet by a B-57.

Indonesian President Denies Ouster

By JAMES WILDE

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP)—President Sukarno prepared today to leave the country, for what is officially described as a rest, in the midst of a national crisis over the campaign against the Dutch. He denied he has been deposed.

The 56-year-old Sukarno, looking tired and tense, personally appeared before newsmen and denied reports from the Netherlands that he was a prisoner of the army and had been ousted from power. He laughed and smiled but refused to answer any questions.

Earlier, in a signed, handwritten note issued through government officials, he had made the same denials. The note said he was carrying on his duties as usual and that Amsterdam is full of wishful thinking.

Commenting on the Amsterdam reports, one of his aides said it was the biggest laugh Sukarno has had in years.

Premier Djarda asked Parliament earlier today to swear in Speaker Sartono, a moderate Nationalist, as acting president in Sukarno's absence. Sartono, also 56, was willing to serve during the period of President Sukarno's recuperation, an official announcement said.

Sukarno, it was said, was going to a friendly neighbor country. Although his need of rest was given as the official reason for his departure, some informants indicated security also was a reason. Four grenades were thrown at him on Nov. 30 in an effort to kill him.

(The Peiping radio in Red China quoted an Indonesian newspaper as saying a second attempt on Sukarno's life was made two days ago, just before he spoke at a rally in Surabaya in which he sounded a no-retreat in his anti-Dutch campaign. The broadcast, heard in Singapore, said police arrested a group of armed terrorists before they could attack.

Dulles Arrives in Paris for Meet

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
PARIS (AP)—U.S. Secretary of State Dulles arrived in Paris today to join other foreign ministers of the Western alliance in final preparations for the NATO summit conference.

A major task awaited the American secretary—the soothing and French feelings hurt by what Paris regards as a British-American effort to dictate the use of nuclear weapons by the alliance.

French Foreign Minister Christian Pineau was not at the airport to meet Dulles, presumably because if he met all 14 visiting NATO foreign ministers, he'd have time for nothing else. Jacques Vinot, head of the American section of the French Foreign Ministry, greeted Dulles for his government.

The secretary declined to make any statement before he was driven to the American Embassy. He said he would leave the talking "to the President tomorrow—he's the head of the delegation."

Two Die in Fire, Deaths in State 5

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

An early morning fire today took the lives of two Negro children in the College Station community southeast of Little Rock.

Three persons died in other types of accidents yesterday to bring the 24-hour Arkansas toll of violent deaths to five.

Willie Robinson told Pulaski County officers that he awoke at 5 a. m. to find an adjoining room where his wife and three children were sleeping ablaze. He said that he broke a window to rescue 21-month-old Willie Ada Robinson, who suffered only slight burns, and his wife also managed to escape.

Killed were Debra, 4, and Janis, 10 months.

The frame house was destroyed. Robinson said there were no fires in stoves in the house, but he said there may have been some coals left in a heating stove from a fire.

Yesterday a Negro grocer was asphyxiated at West Memphis, a man was accidentally shot to death near Camden, and a Negro died in a Camden hospital from injuries suffered in an auto accident 10 days before.

Edward Labates was found dead in bed and his wife and two children were unconscious when West Memphis police broke into the Labates home behind their grocery.

Officers were alerted by customers who found the store closed. They said Labates died from poisonous fumes from a faulty heating apparatus. His wife, a 15-year-old daughter and a 13-year-old son are recovering in a West Memphis hospital.

A coroner's jury at Camden returned a verdict of accidental shooting in the death of John C. Hicks, 45, whose body was found by a sister at his home six miles east of Camden.

A 20-gauge shotgun with which Hicks had been hunting was found beside the body.

Police said Hicks apparently was alone at the time of the shooting. His wife in a hospital at Camden and their three children were in school at the time.

Bonnie Telefree, 63, of Camden was the victim of a car-truck collision which also took the life of his 70-year-old wife. Mrs. Telefree died a week ago.

The Telefree car collided with an Arkansas Power & Light Co. truck on the outskirts of Camden.

Washington (AP)—Robert K. Gray, special White House assistant on patronage, was reported in administration quarters today as a "pretty safe bet" to be President Eisenhower's new appointments secretary.

Gray, a 38-year-old handsome bachelor from Hastings, Neb., has been acting in the appointments post since the recent resignation of Bernard M. Shanley. The latter announced he would run for the Republican senatorial nomination in New Jersey next year.

Gray is a former instructor at Harvard business school.

Robert E. Hampton was reported to be in line to succeed Gray.

Washington (AP)—The White House said today customary precautions, but no more than that, were being taken on the flight to Paris by President Eisenhower because of the storm which has been raging over the Atlantic. Acting press secretary Anne Whitcomb gave this response to inquiries after talking with Eisenhower's pilot, Col. William C. Draper.

In another customary safeguard on such presidential flights, the Navy said U.S. and British naval commands were cooperating to line the President's route across the Atlantic.

Seek Bids on River Projects

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Army Engineers here have asked for bids on a bank stabilization project on both banks of the Arkansas River about 1½ miles east of Jefferson Springs in Jefferson County.

The project calls for extension of a rockfill dike and repair of a revetment.

Bids will be opened in the Little Rock office Jan. 8. The contract will call for completion of the project in 60 days.

Farm Bureau Convention Comes to Close

CHICAGO (AP)—The American Farm Bureau Federation ended its annual convention yesterday by adopting a platform featuring proposals on government-farmer relations, labor practices and the 40-hour week.

The convention also reflected by acclamation Charles B. Shuman, a Sullivan, Ill., livestock farmer who is completing his third year as president.

With little opposition, Shuman led a Farm Bureau drive to get the organization on record for a diminishing role of government in agriculture. The platform, embodying such a recommendation, passed with a resounding unanimous vote after less than an hour's discussion.

The delegates renewed their demands of a year ago that labor unions be made subject to anti-trust laws. The convention also called for federal legislation to outlaw labor racketeering such as that uncovered recently by congressional investigations.

The federation urged an end to what it termed "monopolistic" practices by big business and big labor.

One resolution put the Farm Bureau on record as deploring what it said were efforts by organized labor and others to shorten the 40-hour work week and to obtain other benefits for workers at this time. It said:

"The international situation necessitates continued heavy use of resources for defense and international cooperation. At the present time we cannot as a people have more leisure and at the same time provide adequately for these benefits."

In urging agriculture to seek less dependence on government, the big farm group declared in a resolution that all elements of the economy should return to what it termed the "competitive enterprise system."

The platform commits the farm bureau to fight for changes in federal farm legislation that would give farmers greater freedom in operating their farms and permit farm prices to be determined in greater measure by free market prices.

Included in the considerations will be the Arkansas, Osage, Red, White and St. Francis River basins.

Representatives of river development agencies in Arkansas, Louisiana, Oklahoma and Nebraska yesterday made plans for the meeting.

Ray Hedges, manager of the Little Rock Chamber of Commerce, said the conference would try to emphasize the importance of the area's water resource to future industrial growth.

Pickpockets Thrive at Christmas

CHICAGO (AP)—Americans willingly will dole out millions of dollars shopping for Christmas gifts this year. At the same time they will unknowingly part with thousands of dollars to the professional pickpocket.

The warning came today from Acting Lt. Vincent Nolan of Chicago's confidence game detail. Nolan says more than 60 detectives from his unit alone are now patrolling the city's large department stores, shopping centers, rail and bus terminals and hotels.

This, he said, is in addition to an untold number of men assigned from the various police districts throughout the city.

"As every year, the public is really going to get taken during the 1957 holiday season," Nolan said. When asked for the amount involved he said, "I really can't say specifically, but in Chicago alone it will run into the thousands."

Nolan, with years of police experience behind him, said the professional pickpocket will make more money between Thanksgiving and Christmas than he will during the rest of the year.

He said the pickpocket will prey mainly on women. The woman shopper often puts her purse on the counter while she inspects merchandise. Nolan said, or allows a shoulder bag to hang loosely over her shoulder behind her, both invitations to on alert pickpocket.

He said the accomplished pickpocket's whose ranks include as many women as men, are artists at their trade. Many times, he said, they work in pairs. While one strikes up a conversation and holds the victim's attention, the other "lifts" the victim's wallet or the contents of his purse.

Nolan urged women not to dangle their purses on long straps, and warned men to keep their wallets in a front, rather than a back pocket.

"When in a store shopping, never leave your purse, packages or any valuables on counters," he said. "It's an open invitation to the thief, and he will usually respond immediately."

Peter Ustinov Will Play Dr. Johnson

By CHARLES MERCER
NEW YORK (AP)—For 13 years Peter Ustinov has been known as a wonder boy of show business. Now 6, and scarcely a boy, a bearded Ustinov of ample girth will add a new portrait to the gallery of characters he has played. He will portray that garrulous, irascible 18th century lexicographer, Dr. Samuel Johnson, on Omnibus (NBC-TV) Sunday, The 90-minute dramatization of James Boswell's "Life of Samuel Johnson" marks the debut of both Ustinov and Johnson on American television.

Though scarcely yet a household word in Red Gulch, Mont., Ustinov—an English-born actor and playwright—has inspired great respect in the stage world of London, Broadway and Europe. He is currently starring on Broadway in his own comedy, "Romanoff and Juliet."

Why should Ustinov, busily engaged in seven weekly appearances in his own Broadway play, want to take on the difficult role of Dr. Johnson?

For one thing, he's fascinated by the 18th century, he said the other day.

"Most people think of it as a clean, orderly age. It wasn't. It was dirty and disorderly and revolutionary. People didn't brush their teeth. If they could afford it, they doused a little perfume in their mouths. Men took snuff and spilled it over themselves. They applied powder rather than soap."

"The theater and films have a tendency to clean up 18th century life. When I found that Omnibus planned an honest, accurate portrait of the times, I was interested in playing Dr. Johnson."

Johnson was clean-shaven. Ustinov has worn a beard for years as do many young Europeans talented in the arts who apparently

Robinson Can't Say Much for Europe

By DOROTHY ROE
AP Women's Editor

European merchandise is highly overrated—and their women too, says 100 per cent American Dale Robertson, just back from making an Italian movie with the voluptuous and highly publicized Gina Lollobrigida.

"She's not my type," says Oklahoma-born, six-footer, Robertson, shrugging off the impact of having played the romantic lead opposite the glamorous Lollobrigida.

"All I wanted to do the whole time in Italy was to get back to my horse."

This hard-riding star of movies and TV prefers everything from girls to wines home-grown in America. Says he: "I have everything I ever could want right in my own back yard in Sepulveda, California, and I can't wait to get back there."

What he has in the ample back yard includes four riding horses, three dogs and one parakeet, in addition to a stable of race horses.

"Americans are too impressed by anything that's imported," he continues. "They're always looking across that pond, sighing over Paris hats, French wines, British tailoring and Italian women."

"There's a lot of beautiful scenery in Europe, sure. But when they started talking too much about it, I just asked them if they'd ever seen Yellowstone Park or the Grand Canyon. That's as much scenery as I need. Just how much beauty can you take in, anyway?"

"Now you take wines. A lot of so-called connoisseurs and gourmets in this country wouldn't be caught dead with anything but an imported wine. But I found for a fact that after any wine has been shipped from Europe to America it can't compare with our own American vintages."

Kansas annually produces one fourth of the U. S. winter wheat supply.

DOROTHY DIX
A Triangle Looming in This Home Girl Must Act With Good Wisdom

Dear Dorothy Dix: My husband goes bowling twice a week, leaving right after supper and not returning until after 1 a.m. He says he stops off at a tavern with the boys. He's usually in a bad mood when he returns.

In an effort to meet the expenses of raising two small children, I rent a room several months ago to a man who is married, but separated from his wife. He usually keeps his own room, but lately my husband has been encouraging him to join the family circle, and watch TV. With my husband's outside activities, the boarder and I are naturally left alone quite a bit. We are definitely becoming attached to each other. He takes liberties which I permit—even encourage. If my husband would give up bowling, I know I could end this dangerous association.

BABE
Dear Babe: You can't excuse your own sins by putting the blame on someone else. Granted your husband is inconsiderate in leaving you alone so much; his actions don't give you immunity to commit worse indiscretions. You are three morally weak people and unless one of you has the guts to recognize right from wrong and act accordingly, the result will be one broken home and two distraught youngsters who will be the real sufferers of their parents' weaknesses. Since you, at least, have the gumption to write me, I know you recognize the danger in the situation. Set it right now, turn the boarder out, find some other means of bolstering your income, tell your husband how close he's been to a wrecked home and ask him to sacrifice a few beers for the good of his family. Act now.

Dear Dorothy Dix: We have a charming friend whose only fault is arriving at lot us in distraction. She simply cannot keep an appointment.

Dear Dorothy Dix: The boy I like has been in reform school, and has a bad reputation. He acts like a gentleman when he's with me, but with his other friends he's quite different. He drinks a lot. I can't decide whether I love him or not. Should I forget him?

Dear Dorothy Dix: While you are still in this indefinite stage, I'd certainly advise you to forget the boy. His present conduct with other people is sufficient reason.

CHAPTER XXIII
"I'm afraid I've met your daddy—not socially."

"I know," she said still smiling. "Do you know where I can reach Wayne?"

Howell frowned. "You know my boy?"

"We're friends," she said. "I saw Miss Howell shifted in the seat so that he could look over her shoulder carefully. Right now I don't know where Wayne is. Did you try the cottage where he's staying?"

"He isn't there," she tried to smile, but it didn't work. "Oh, well, it isn't important." She nodded at the two of us and walked quickly away with a long-legged stride.

As we headed for the lake highway, Howell said, "Nice looking girl."

"It might be of interest to you to know that Honey Campbell is in love with your son—anyhow, I think she is. When I told her he was married, she became quite upset."

He turned toward me. "You don't say!" Howell exclaimed. "Why couldn't the boy have picked a girl like her, instead of that cheap floozy?"

"One of those things," I said. He grunted something I didn't catch, and I said, "You call the turns."

"Keep going straight ahead," he reached around into the rear seat, lifted the tackle box to his lap, opened it and took out a pint whisky bottle, unscrewed the cap. "Have a shot, Bennett. It's good rye."

He shook my head. "He fitted the bottle and swallowed several times. I shuddered a little. He drank again, recapped the bottle, wiped his mouth with the back of a hand. 'Stop at the third house on the left. We gotta get some bait.'"

We were well out of Lakeport now, with the lake on our left and scattered houses on our right. I pulled off the road in front of a house. A sign in front said "Live Bait."

We got out and walked around to the back. Howell, carrying the minnow bucket, a fat woman in dirty yellow slacks came out of a chicken house. Howell told her what we wanted. She nodded silently, dipped some minnows from a tank into Howell's bucket, an filled a can with moss and squirming worms. Howell paid her and we returned to the car.

We came to a sandwich and ice cream drive-in I'd spotted the day before. I drove up, beside it and stopped. A uniformed girl came up and looked at my tray over the window ledge. I told her to bring me a ham on rye and a large glass of milk. She looked at Howell, her pencil poised. He shook his head. "Nothing for me, girlie."

He was silent as I ate and took small sips from the bottle from time to time. When we were once more on the road, I said, "This woman who married your son—Sandra. You said you talked to her, offered her money to leave Wayne alone?"

"I talked to her. She knows what I think of her, all right."

I watched the road ahead and said carefully, "Would you say that Sandra disliked you enough to attack an ice pick into you?"

He looked at me suddenly. "He didn't speak for a second. Then 'I can't think that she has no reason. Maybe I was pretty rough with her, but she had Wayne hooked, and—"

"Then, who?" I asked. He picked up the bottle and unscrewed the cap. "I—I don't know, Bennett," he said in an uneasy voice. "Honest, I just don't know."

"We fished for an hour, maybe longer. The sun became warm and I loosened my collar and worked Howell puffed on a cigar, worked at the handle and talked a little. He told me of his life in Detroit, the business he'd had there, about his wife's lingering illness which had ended with her death."

Finally he stopped talking. He sat hunched with his hands clasped over his knees, the floppy white hat pulled down over his eyes. He seemed almost asleep and I didn't wonder about that. The bottle was empty. My line, which hadn't moved all afternoon, was jerking. I leaned forward, picked up the rod and walked to the strike.

In that instant something went SPANG near Howell. The sound was followed by the flat report of a gun in the woods behind us. I knew the sound could not mistake it. I jerked my head toward Howell. He was sitting erect, staring down at the large flat rock upon which he sat. Chips of stone flicked the water and there was the ringing whine of a spent bullet.

CHAPTER XXIV
I reacted from instinct. "Get down!" I shouted at Howell as I grabbed my rod and slid over the edge of the ledge into the water. Howell was staring down at me, a stupid, startled expression on his heavy, florid face.

"Get down, get down!" I cried. "Constitution entered his eyes then, and clumsily he rolled his heavy body over the ledge and crouched in the shallow water beside me. The locusts had stopped and it was suddenly very quiet."

We huddled there in the water while the seconds ticked by. Nothing happened. We waited, neither of us speaking. Then the locusts began to buzz again. I motioned to Howell to keep down, cautiously raised my head and peered over the overhanging ledge. I didn't see anything but the silent woods, but I ducked down again. I was in water almost to my knees, and so was Howell. There was no place for us to go, unless we swam, and if we exposed ourselves, whoever was back there in the woods would have a perfect shot at us. I wished I had the gun from the pocket of my coat up on the ledge. Not that it would have helped—we were sitting ducks. So we waited, and then the sun sank lower.

At last Howell whispered very hoarsely, "What'll we do?"

He made a grotesque picture squatting there in the water with sweat on his beefy, upturned face. I said, "I think it's okay now. Come on up." I helped him scramble up to the ledge. I had a bad moment when he stood erect beside me, but there was nothing but the buzz of the locusts from the woods behind us. Nevertheless, I said, "Get into the car. Make it fast."

He ran to the car, got in and slammed the door. I took the fish from his stringer, tossed them back into the lake, emptied the minnow bucket and the worm can, all the while feeling a prickling sensation on the back of my neck. Then I collected my coat, hat and fishing gear and went to the car.

"It was too close," he turned in the seat and looked at me. "What's going on?"

I ignored his question and asked one of my own, keeping my gaze on the road ahead. "Why do you pick on Otto, the bartender?"

He said contemptuously, "Oh, him. He's always so polite and—superior acting, kind of sneering, as if he was better than me." He paused, and sighed again. "Maybe I shouldn't lose my temper, but I've been so worried lately, about Wayne and that woman—I guess I just took it out on the bartender. Anyhow, I don't like him."

Then you think maybe it was just an accident back there?"

"No," I said harshly. "His aim was bad, but he was shooting at you."

He didn't speak for a second. Then he said in an unsteady voice, "Stay with me, Bennett. Will you? Let me sleep in your room tonight. I—I can't take much more of this, not on top of poor Ambrose getting murdered, and Wayne marrying that woman, and all—"

"All right," I said weakly. "You can stay with me tonight."

It was after five when we reached the Harbor House. My shoes, socks and trouser legs felt uncomfortably soggy and I asked Howell if he wanted to change. He said, "Right now I want a drink."

Thelma was behind the bar. Howell and I sat in a booth. He now seemed to be quite calm, in spite of the bullet which had so narrowly missed him. The waitress came over and I suggested to Howell that he order some dinner. He gave me a crooked grin and told the girl to bring him a double rye.

When the drink arrived, I asked the girl, "Where's Otto?"

"He's late," she replied, "but he'll be here—I hope. Thelma" got a date. I looked at Howell, but he avoided my glance and raised his glass.

Honey Campbell entered the bar, saw us, and came straight to our booth. There was a faint, hard twist to her mouth and a smoldering something in her eyes. I stood up. "Hello, Honey. Will you join us?"

She said, "Thank you, but I can only stay a minute," and sat beside me. She spoke to Howell, "Is it true—about Wayne?"

He raised his busy eyebrows in surprise. "About what, my car?" Coming from him, the courtly "my dear" sounded outlandish. I gazed at him curiously, but his attention was all on the girl.

She said, "About Wayne returning to Detroit tomorrow."

Howell shook his head. "I don't know anything about it. Why?"

She took a cigarette from a package in a small purse. I struck a match for her. "I've been trying to contact Wayne, you know," she said. "Well, I finally got an answer from the cottage. She—that woman—was there, alone. I told her I wanted to talk to Wayne. She said he wasn't there, that she didn't know when he'd return. Then she asked 'who I was.'"

Honey paused, drew on her cigarette, and went on. "I don't think she's aware that Wayne and I are acquainted, so I said I worked at the library and that a book on geology Wayne had waited had come in, and that he could pick it up. She laughed and said, 'Forget the book, dear. Wayne and I are returning to Detroit in the morning, and we won't be back.' Then she hung up."

AHEAD OF HIS TIME—Who says comedians are behind the times in the current TV western trend? Here's a picture of George Gobel taken in 1935 when he was 15 and a country music kid on Chicago's radio station WLS Barn Dance program. About today's westerns George says, "Who cares about fast draws? They don't use real bullets on TV anyway. I'll challenge anyone to 14 verses of 'Strawberry Roan'!"

TO HELP THE NEEDY—These French stamps, to be issued in the near future, will perform a double function. They each have an added surcharge for the benefit of the French Red Cross. The blue 15-franc stamp at left has a surcharge of seven francs, while the violet stamp at right has an extra eight francs added to its 20-franc denomination.

WORSHIP EVERY SUNDAY IN YOUR FAVORITE CHURCH

YOU NEED THE SPIRITUAL UPLIFT OF A PRAYER-HOUR IN GOD'S HOUSE

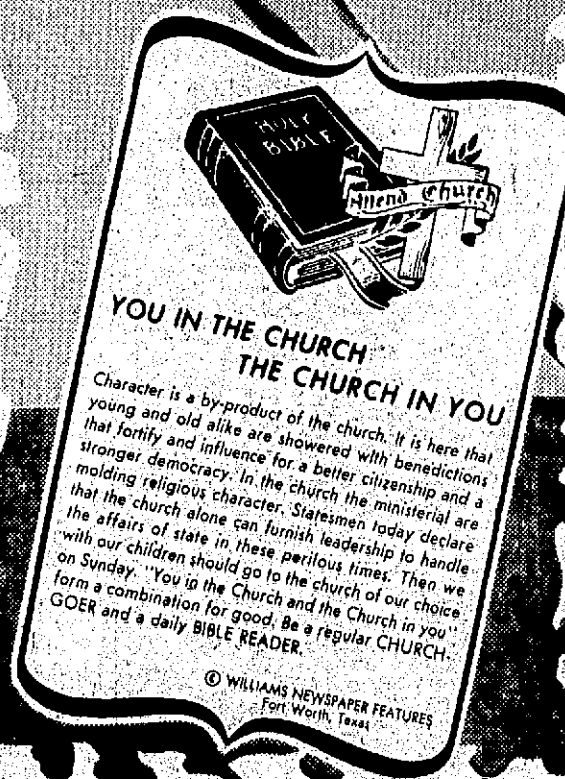

Plain Talk

Here is Life's romance . . . a father and son in plain talk. We hear the father admonish his son — "You are building a life, a career. You need all the wisdom I have acquired through experience. Son, you should take along the Bible's blueprint for better living. Don't make the mistake some of your friends do . . . you need the church. You need the fellowship of church people to gain inspiration for conquering difficulties you must face. You must be cautious, honest and sincere. Your ambition must be worthy, your aim high, your heart pure. Quoting the Golden Rule is not enough, son — it must be lived. Finally, my boy, I hope you will regularly read Jeremiah 42:3 and keep faith with all of this plain talk."
